Truth Is Mighty

WE ARE very sorry to notice that our esteemed contemporary, the Las Vegas Optic, in its account of the reception given the visiting statesmen by the people of the Meadow City, "plumb forgot" the well known fact that "truth is mighty, and will prevail." For instance, it tells us that Mr. Tawney delivered a speech in which he made an eloquent and forcible argument in favor of single statehood for New Mexico, while the truth is that Mr. Tawney did not say a word about statehood, single or double, and told a representative of the Morning Journal that he had not uttered a word upon that question while in the territory, and did not intend to say anything about it, because, he said, he had come here to learn the sentiment of the people on the subject, and thought it would be in very bad taste for him to say anything that might make it appear as though he were trying to influence public opinion one way or the other, and for that reason, he declared, he had "positively refused to utter a word upon the subject." When he reads the Optic's story about his able and eloquent appeal in favor of single statehood for New Mexico, he will probably think false in one, false in omnibus, and feel disposed to take the Optic's fairy stories regarding the overwhelming sentiment in opposition to joint statehood, with a very large lump of salt.

The same report also represents Judge Mills as making a "powerful argument" in favor of single statehood, whereas persons who were present and heard the remarks made by Judge Mills say that he did not touch upon the question at all, but merely extended to the visitors a proper and formal welcome to Las Vegas.

We are not surprised at the Optic man's deviation from the straight and narrow path, because we meet with such cases in the columns of the anti-statehood press every day, but we are really ashamed of his awkwardness in fabricating a story in such a clumsy manner that it cannot fail to hurt the cause it was intended to help.

But on the other hand Mr. Rodey made a speech on the occasion referred to, in which he advocated jointure in his well known strenuous manner, and presented a long array of arguments in favor of his position which none of the anti-statehood champions present attempted to answer. And yet the Optic, in its report of the affair, does not even mention the fact that Mr. Rodey spoke. Probably the Optic thinks it can advance its cause by ignoring the other side, but the gentlemen whose votes have to decide this question will doubtless take a different view of the matter. There is something wrong with a cause that is afraid of the light.

MR. ROCKEFELLER, who has so many millions that he cannot count them, and is fighting hard for more, tells us that money-making is not the great thing of life, and advises everybody to "turn your thoughts into other channels." The philosophy is correct, but the example is bad.

COMMUNITIES sometimes make the mistake of misjudging a man, but it is only in cases where a single offense is charged. A person continually under suspicion, and against whom enough shortcomings are charged to fill a book, is rarely the victim of an erroneous judgment.

Let Well Enough Alone

THE Massachusetts republicans, in their state convention resolved in favor of a general revision of the tariff. That is going too far. There are a few articles on the list that have outgrown the need of protection, but as a whole the tariff is all right, and the country has prospered under the present schedules as it never prospered before. Take the duty on wool for instance. Up to the time of the Dingley tariff—or the McKinley tariff, which was almost the same—foreign wools had so far crowded the native product out of the market that the leading industry of all this great southwestern region was practically ruined, the sheep men everywhere were having a hard struggle to make ends meet, and things were steadily becoming worse with them. But under the operation of the present beneficent measure they have all been flourishing, and their profits being invested in the development of the country this section has been and is now growing in population and wealth faster than it ever grew before, while there is no reason to doubt that a repeal of the wool tariff would very soon send us back to the dark days of '94-'95.

Except under very unusual conditions it is always better to let well enough alone.

WHEN Delegate Maguire goes back to Washington he will take with him a petition two and one-half miles long, asking for statehood. Of course congress will let him read it.—Topeka Journal.

A Great National Policy

SENATOR LODGE declares that the ratification by the senate of the Santo Domingo treaty will mark "the beginning of a great national policy."

In a great measure that is true, though the receivership plan, which constitutes the real gist of the new policy, is in reality but an enlargement of the time-honored "Monroe Doctrine." The decision to accept or reject the receivership plan will determine to what extent that doctrine should be, or can practically be, upheld in the future. The United States has adopted the principle that a nation's contractual debts could not be collected by force. That was a good idea, but we had to abandon its universal promulgation because European powers would not respect it. Although the Monroe doctrine is not embodied in international law, says the San Francisco Call, European nations are disposed to respect it so long as it is not so interpreted as to bar their way to the collection of debts. In case a South American country owes a debt to the subjects of a European power and that power decides to enforce payment, the United States has the alternative of either attending to the collection of the debt on behalf of the creditor country or of upholding a doctrine which would practically mean war against the whole of money-lending Europe. To evade the possibility of such a war, or any alternative that would be virtually a backdown on the subject of the Monroe doctrine, the receivership plan which is now proving such a success in Santo Domingo would be an effective policy. However, even if the principle of our undertaking these national receiverships were adopted, there would remain the possible awkward contingency of a little delinquent South American country refusing to peaceably co-operate with the benevolent paternal scheme. In that case we would either have to use force or let Europe do it.

A NEW YORK actress wants $5,000 damages because a street car conductor impaired her dimple, and the Kansas City Journal says it will take some strong swearing to convince the average juror that an actress' cheek can be damaged by a little brush in a street car.

The Almanac publishes an extremely interesting picture of the Bernalillo county court house in its issue of Monday. The Almanac overlooked several important details in connection with this bit of modern newspaper enterprise. It forgot to tell us whether the Almanac paid for the cut, or whether it was paid for by that benevolent institution known as the Bureau of Immigration, and it forgot to mark the spot where the sheriff's office records were kept.

El Paso wants a curfew ordinance. Albuquerque has a good reliable one that is not in use.

"Shall the Torrance county fair be a permanent organization?" Estanislao News. Brother, haven't you trouble enough now?

The Tucson Star is beginning to make single statehood for Arizona look attractive. It declares the Mormons would run it.

The American Venture Corporation with four million shares of stock, has filed its articles in Arizona. The name sound strangely like life insurance.

A party of Arizonians travelled a thousand miles last week to see a circus. They could have saved mileage and money by waiting to see the phoebic anti-welcome the congressional delegation.

The Las Vegas Optic thinks the attorney who advises a client to go to jail for disobeying the court, should be made to go to jail in the client's stead. The Optic should remember that most of our jails are crowded.

That attractive legal pleading that he had not resigned, is not dead, and still claims his job may be comforting to Tomas' attorneys, but it can hardly be made so comfortable in his unfamiliar position as a private citizen.

The Farmington Hustler finds fault with Miguel, the one, because he didn't know that Devery and his Grande had completed its line into Farmington. The Hustler should remember that the governor has been hustling and that he's tired.

The Almanac tells us that there are half a dozen candidates for governor of New Mexico. The Almanac must be losing its grip on the political situation. There are six in Albuquerque to say nothing of the standing candidates in Santa Fe, Las Vegas, Glorieta and other resort towns.

If the visiting congressional party submit a fair report on New Mexico and Arizona, it will be the first that in history that the territories have gotten a fair deal from such distinguished visitors.—Las Vegas Optic. According to our old friend, Wilson Elbert, of New York, a square deal report is the worst thing that could happen to us.

Among the rare gems of recent New Mexico literature, is that classic legal treatise by the eminent Attorney "The Tangled Tale of Tomas," or "How Best to Back Up Without Backing Down." Bound in elegant gold skin, illustrated with photographs of the county jail. Entire edition for sale by the author. Price, the client's income.

The Retort Courtroom. George Ade, the other night at a dress rehearsal of his new play, "Just Out of College," took occasion to call the attention of a member of the cast to the fact that he had failed to pull down his cuffs at a stipulated point in one of the scenes.

"Wait one minute," shouted Mr. Ade, prancing out on the stage and putting a stop to the rehearsal. "Halt right where you are."

"Haven't I told you to pull down your cuffs?" shouted the book man. Pull down your cuffs?"

"Yes, sir," said the actor. "Well, you haven't done it!" snapped the playwright. "Your cuffs are way up around your elbows, aren't they?"

"Yes, sir, they are," replied the actor.

"Well, for the sake of the Divinity of Things, man, pull them down! Down! Down! Every gentleman pulls his cuffs down!"

"I think you go too much by hearsay, sir," replied the actor. And the rehearsal went on.

Margie, (aged four), caught her small brother in the pantry. "Oh, Tommy!" she exclaimed, "I'm going to tell mamma!"

"Better not tell her I'll give you a piece of this cake," rejoined Tommy.

CERTAIN RESULTS.

Many an Albuquerque Citizen Knows How Sure They Are.

Nothing uncertain about the work of Doan's Kidney Pills in Albuquerque. There is plenty of positive proof of this in the testimony of citizens. Such evidence should convince the most skeptical sufferer. Read the following statement:

E. H. Thomas, rooming house, 509 South Second street, writes: "I have read somewhere that backache was generally an indication of kidney complaint and when there was added to it trouble with the kidney secretions the signs were unmistakable. When I contracted a cold both these annoyances visited and for eight months I was racked caused another was sure to follow, so that I can consistently say I was almost bothered continually. I finally went to the Alvarado Pharmacy for Doan's Kidney Pills and took the remedy. It did exactly as promised; stopped the annoyance very promptly and effectively."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-McBarn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Call for Bernalillo County Bonds. The county commissioners of the county of Bernalillo, in the Territory of New Mexico, in the exercise of the option given by law, hereby give notice that the funding bonds dated July 1st, 1895, issued in two series, known as A and B respectively, consisting of 162 bonds of $100 each, numbered 1 to 162 both inclusive, of series "A" and 135 bonds of $100 each numbered 1 to 135, both inclusive of series "B" which are payable at the option of said commissioners ten years after the date thereof, must be presented for payment at the Chemical National Bank in the city of New York or at the office of N. W. Harris & Co., in the city of Chicago, Illinois, on or before the fifteenth day of September, 1905, and that interest thereon will cease after said date. (Signed) ALFRED GRUNSFELD, J. A. The California Limited Log Book:

Sam Solomon, of Fresno, insisted that we go east on the Santa Fe, so we embarked on the Limited. So here we are about to enter Chicago at our journey's end, and we wish to say that the Santa Fe is the best equipped overland route; we have traveled them all. The Fred Harvey dining service cannot be surpassed for quality, quantity and service, and the Santa Fe equipment and crew service is to be commended. We thank the train crew and the dining service crew for their kind attentions. Sincerely yours, Marion Hart and Jack Cornice, (Two Healthy Athletes) Chicago, Ill.
